At the very beginning, the student should become aware that the catalog indicates the usual sequence of courses by showing whether they are offered in the fall or spring semester. However, circumstances may require changes, so always double check with your advisor. If you do not yet own a catalog, go the Admissions Office and request one.

NOTE: Keep this in your personal file and present it to the advisor each semester in order to expedite your advisement. Remember that the responsibility of careful planning rests upon the individual student. The faculty member is only an "advisor." Therefore, if it becomes necessary to alter your schedule, keep the advisor informed so that you may benefit from their information, etc.
