Bachelor of Science

Concentration in Management Information Systems

This four-year Bachelor of Science program combines the study of business with strong technology expertise. Graduates of this program work as liaisons between information system users and the developers of these computer-based systems. They identify the best use of technology to solve business problems for more efficient, competitive operation of businesses. These professionals need a strong foundation in business practices, an understanding of the role of information systems within organizations, and a current knowledge of technology. Our graduates pursue careers as systems analysts and developers, business analysts, consultants, and information systems managers.
