

Why get involved?

At Lock Haven University, academics, community service and citizenship are all part of a well-rounded college education. The MountainServe Center for Global Citizenship encourages you to join us in serving communities in Clinton County, in Pennsylvania, across the nation and around the globe through your volunteer efforts. You will have the opportunity to make a difference in the world while learning, traveling and having adventures that you will remember for a lifetime.

The educational process includes learning by serving others and by being engaged in your community. You will use what you learn in the classroom to address real-world issues and situations. As a result, you will leave Lock Haven with better communication and problem-solving skills, be a more informed and engaged citizen, and be better prepared to perform in, as well as contribute to, our global society.

Why is it here at LHU?

The development of global citizen scholars is too important to be contained by a single classroom. The future of our common humanity depends on how well our students learn the lessons our places are teaching them... whether those places are in the Northern or Central Appalachians, the Sierra Madre Occidental, the High Atlas or the profoundly changed landscape of the Mississippi and Louisiana Gulf Coast. MountainServe invites you to come and join us in serving, learning and listening to the stories and lessons that come to our students from places where the ground is incredibly uneven.

Small college lifestyle... big university education

How do I get involved?

Lock Haven University has credit and non-credit opportunities for undergraduate and graduate students to engage in service-learning. We invite you to visit us at MountainServe Center for Global Citizenship in 103 Raub Hall to discuss the wide variety of opportunities that we offer locally, regionally, nationally and internationally.

What have we done so far?

In 2008, Community Service sponsored three alternative spring break service trips:
