II. Management forcing a coach to keep athlete on the team.

RJ-President holds ultimate decisions on this campus; however realistic decisions must be made while using authority. Lack of appropriate policy that was not applied consistently, was the root of the problem. Coach placed himself and the university at risk for not having proper policy in place and remaining consistent to that policy.

ST- If policy must be written and followed, it will then be misused and the roadmap to finding was around abiding by the rules. Coaches must be allowed to make decisions that affect their roster and their team for whatever reason they deem appropriate.

We are being encouraged to reinforce with policy, our rules and regulations and document any deviations from them. Roger explained that it is much easier to justify removal when there is documented evidence. He also explained that this situation was a onetime occurrence and will not be precedent to other incidences.

Roger suggests that we refer to the faculty policy on classroom behavior as a guide to
