South Korea and USA: Cultural Perspectives

Lock Haven, Pa. - Jihyun Roh, from Chungnam University in Daejeon, South Korea and Derrick Heller, from Lock Haven University, who studied at Chungnam University as an exchange student, will offer a presentation on their experiences as students. The presentation will be held on the campus of Lock Haven University on Thursday, September 22 at 7:00 pm in 425 Raub Hall. This event is free and open to the public. Korean snacks will be served.

Roh and Heller have insightful observations regarding cultural differences and expectations as students who have studied in the same institutions. Roh, who works as a Graduate Assistant in the Institute for International Studies, will share his assumptions and expectations of an American university as well as dispel some American-held Asian stereotypes. Heller will share his experiences as an American student studying in Korea. There will be an opportunity to ask questions at the conclusion of the presentation.
